

Yarra4Life Woodlands & Biolinks Project

Protecting, improving and increasing the extent of woodlands and biolinks

EXPRESSION OF INTEREST FOR LANDHOLDERS
JANUARY 2010

Yarra4Life Woodlands & Biolink Project

About the project

Yarra4Life Woodlands & Biolink Project is an exciting new project funded by the Australian Government through Australian Government 'Caring for our Country' and the Judith Eardley Save Wildlife Association.

The primary aim is to protect and enhance local woodland vegetation on private property.

Yarra4Life Woodlands & Biolinks offers generous incentives to landholders to undertake activities such as fencing for stock exclusion, weed control, woodland and wildlife habitat enhancement and strategic revegetation.

Another complimentary target of the project is to create biolinks between the Yellingbo Nature Conservation Reserve and the other nearby environmentally significant reserves i.e. Kurth Kiln Regional Park to the south east, the Yarra Ranges National Park and Warramate Nature Conservation Reserve to the north and the Dandenong Ranges National Park to the west. This is to support and protect the threatened populations of wildlife – especially the Helmeted Honeyeater and Leadbeater's Possum.

Applications are now open for Round 1 (closing 28 February 2010) for landholders interested in enhancing their property, woodlands and helping to link our existing wildlife reserves with biolinks

You are invited to apply for funding through the Yarra4Life Woodlands & Biolink Project. A range of attractive incentives are available including:

- Protection and enhancement of remnant woodland and wildlife habitat including fencing, weed control and infill planting with indigenous vegetation
- Revegetation of linkages
- Pest Control
- Free property assessment and land management advice
